Page 6 – Discussion (answers may vary slightly, but should follow along these lines:)

1. The man could have practiced charity by letting Mrs. Thompson stay, as she was old, perhaps even offering some light work for her to do to pay for her stay.
2. This is a lesson in trusting Divine Providence. We mean that Our Lord knows all things and that something which does not seem necessary for us is necessary in God's plan. (It suffices that the child understands that the tricks are kind, for our own good, and caused because God knows better than we do).
3. Charity, generosity, kindness. There can be so many chances for charity every day: doing something right away for your parents, doing something kind for anyone, thinking of other people first, giving a favorite possession to someone who has little, playing with someone who you do not like to play with, etc... (Remind the child of his own ideas so that he will remember to practice them).
